MONTANA AND ITS RACING.

The sharp American success of 1896 in a racing way was that of the meetings at Anaconda and Butte, Montana. Their reflections have been startling. Ogden, who won the Futurity, and May W, the best "good thing" of the western season came from them. Although he did not appear on the surface, Marcus Daly was the good angel of the Montana meetings. Ed Tipton, of Lexington, was the mechanic. His success as secretary of both tracks was sharp and clear. Tipton's a trotting horseman in reputation. The Kentucky Association's success was his first passport. It was one of great class.

Tipton is a student, and when Secretary Miller was in harness for the Lexington Racing Association Tipton did much of the work with him. Tipton went to Montana in the early summer. He was in Chicago on his way to Kentucky a few days ago. I saw him at the Great Northern. He is in love with the West. We gossiped of Mr. Daly, Montana, its racing horses, and the Anaconda and Butte meetings. Mr. Tipton said: "No wonder Ogden won the Futurity. He raced like a wonder in Montana, and John Campbell is confident that he is the colt of a century. Ogden is a noble, individually. May W's a shifty, good-looking filly. She won two fast races with us—five furlongs in 1:01½, and three-quarters in 1:14½. The tracks at Anaconda and Butte, though, are as good as money and intelligent fitting and tools can make them.

To my idea Montana is the greatest country on earth in which to race or hold races, because the people there look upon racing as a sport worthy of patronage, and they have the money to gratify their notions. Wages are good and the men who toil are amongst the best patrons of both the gate and the pool box. The women bet almost as much as the men.

Considering the fact that our thoroughbred fields average fewer than five horses to a race and that we started in with not more than 120 thoroughbreds—but they were good enough to go into any kind of a race—I think the meeting at both Anaconda and Butte were simply marvels. The attendance was large and enthusiastic; and, though we had few real plungers, the volume of betting was enormous, everybody buying a mutual ticket, if no more. Had we had 100 more thoroughbreds the meeting, from a betting standpoint, would have been almost on the phenomenal—or unheard-of—order. As it was, I am well satisfied that our betting brought us more per day than was realized this year at either Louisville, Oakley, Latonia, Newport, St. Louis or Milwaukee. Then, too, there was not a single book on. All the betting was done by the French mutual and auction system. Men who have been all around the racing world—I mean by all around to cover Europe and Australia—tell me that they never saw such mutual betting except in Paris. I believe them, for it was no unusual thing for $40,000 per day to go through the machines on five races of very small fields. Then, too, no matter what the winning ($5) tickets paid—they realized from $5.15 to $397.90—their holders were satisfied much better than the average bettor is satisfied with booking and booking prices. From first to last there was no talk about horses running "dead" in the interest of certain bookmakers.

Of course, there was some kicking, we never saw a meeting without it. But it was not such as is usual around tracks where the betting is done in the books. Yes! I am a strong advocate of going back to first principles and selling pools and mutuals and dropping the books, if possible. The change has got to come and it can't come too soon to suit me.

Of course the Mutual and Auction Systems will be hard to introduce in cities like Chicago. But they are the present systems for smaller places. Banish the books, and tracks like Washington Park can be made to pay $4000 to $5000 per day in commissions alone. That may sound small for such a noble racing place as Washington Park, but even there, year in and year out it is pretty hard to average from fifty to sixty books daily.

I expect to go back to Montana in 1897, and all I want is enough thoroughbreds to fill my fields. Had the eastern brigade known the field there would have been plenty of horses this summer. The balance will be easy enough, because I now understand all the conditions to make success reasonably certain.

Who is the leader in racing in Montana? You know that it is Marcus Daly, whom I regard as the greatest sportsman ever in America and as a broad gauged a man as ever lived. I never saw his equal when it comes to doing anything that he considers worth his while. Nothing can be done too well for him and he is willing at all times to pay what a thing is worth, or even a little more, if it will help along some poor fellow trying to get up in the world. He kept up wages in Montana when other big mining men wanted to reduce them, and to-day he is the greatest friend labor has in America. He believes in the motto, 'Live and let live,' and lives up to it every day. Of course he has enemies, because he is a man of brains and asserts himself when necessary; but it will be a bad day for the men who toil and their dependents when Montana loses him. May he live to be a hundred years old."

NOTES OF THE TURF.

Sir Walter's racing days are almost over. His fore legs are none too good and he is full of rheumatism.

The New York Sun opines that "Ludwigshafen looks and acts like a colt of high class." His racing points that way.

Marcus Daly is said to covet the services of the flamboyant Tod Sloan, now riding well in the east, for next season.

Starter Pettingill is to introduce still another starting machine at Oakley. Where are we and the courts "at," and who's who and what's what?

The Great Eastern was not a true test so far as Ornament was concerned. The colt got away last and was badly tangled up. Taraf's riding landed Ogden and after the race he said: "Great Scott, but that's a game colt."

CAESARIAN AGAIN BEATEN.

Tully Coulter's gift colt Bombardon got out of the maiden class in yesterday's second Ideal Park race. Coulter has tried a dozen times to win a race with the Dunne castoff. Starting often, Bombardon has finished inside the money in a majority of his races.

Bombardon was the favorite for the race and seemed right at home in the deep going. Soden was away in the first flight and nothing ever got near the colt.

Outside of the first event the racing was not deeply interesting. In this there was a procession for the first three-quarters of a mile, but after that the contest became funny and interesting. Miss Clark was so far in front on the turn that the issue was considered as settled. But all at once Clark stopped and Mollie King went to the front and at the three-sixteenth pole seemed to have the race won. But out of the ruck came Vigars and passing the two leaders as though they were tied he came on, and just lasted long enough to stall off Miss Clark's rush and win by a scant half length.

Caesarian is not doing well in Sam Hildreth's hands. He has started twice and failed twice. The colt could not run a bit against Simmons and May Galop and finished a far off third. He pulled up sound, however, and will do better next time.

Umbrella in the third race was a "real good thing," although his owner did not bet on him.

EUGENE LEIGH'S GREAT SIRE BRAMBLE, BY BONNIE SCOTLAND—IVY LEAF.

The Fleischman stable notion is toward another eastern campaign and a farm of its own in 1897. St. Maxim will hardly race again this year. Halma is doing well. So is Prince of Monaco. Ultimately Halma is to be at the head of the Fleischman stud.

John Hyland, of the Blemton Stable, is keenly disappointed because Requit is not in his lot. The colt ran a 1:40 mile for him in 1895 and Mr. Belmont promised to buy him. But rather than offend Col. W. P. Thompson, whose notion toward Requit was stout, Mr. Belmont did not keep the promise.

The California Jockey Club is to run special steamers from and to its next track at Oakland in less than twenty-five minutes, from the Market street ferry in San Francisco. The contemplated schedule makes the trip from the Palace Hotel to the track one of less than half an hour.

The Friar is the rogue of 1896. In the spring he was superbly tried and valued at more than $25,000. At times he shows his quality and at others he races like a dog. In the Prospect stakes, on Brooklyn's opening day, in which he beat Cleophas, George Rose and a good field, the colt surprised the Eastern experts.

because his price was too short. He was off with the track and led all the way. L. A. Legg has purchased His Brother and Frank Jaubert from James O'Neil.
